So who is Henrietta?

Henrietta is my middle name, and my great-grandmother's name. The goal of Henrietta Glass is to blend excellent design with fine craftsmanship in order to create small pieces of functional art within the reach of regular people.

Each piece begins with a simple idea from daily life such as my friend Christine asking me to make a vase "perfect for just one flower" or my cousin needing a place to put her engagement ring while she does the dishes. I create, test and refine the idea through a series of prototypes, and then, if the design shows promise I teach the design to my team so the new piece can go into production. Every piece of Henrietta Glass is handblown in my Rhode Island studio, by me and my fantastic assistants. We hope you enjoy using your Henrietta Glass as much as we enjoyed making it!
